Sonnet 73

That time of year thou may'st in me behold
When yellow leaves, or none, or few do hang
Upon those boughs which shake against the cold,
Bare ruin'd sho'ns, where late the sweet birds sang.

In me thou see'st the twilight of such day
As after sunset fadeth in the west,
Which by far the blackest night doth sway,
To thee no self, that wails up all in rest,

In me thou see'st the glowing of such fire,
That on the ashes of his youth doth lie,
As the death'd whiereon it must expire,
Consum'd with that which it was wont to feed;

This thou perceiv'st, which makes my love true strong;
To live that well, which thou must leave ere long.

William Shakespeare
1564-1616
